WE NOMINATE

Harold Willis Dodds, president emeritus of Princeton University and one of this country's far-seeing educators, who this past week—at age 71—entered upon a new phase of a many-sided career which over the past half-century has brought him into touch with almost every conceivable facet of American life. For 24 years president of Princeton, a consultant to government agencies, a United States representative in international conferences and a practical political scientist, Dodds has now become first chairman of the board of trustees that will merge and operate the Miss Fine's and Princeton Country Day Schools.

Announcement of the creation of a new, non-profit educational corporation to be called "The Princeton Day Schools", culminating long months of planning and confirming rumors of several years' duration, came this week as preludes to the two schools' eventual move to a 70-acre Great Road tract in Princeton Township and the launching next spring of a seven-figure capital fund campaign. Amalgamated under Dodds' leadership, with the present board chairmen of Miss Fine's and P.C.D., Mrs. Barklie McKee Henry and Richard W. Baker Jr., serving as vice-chairmen, will be a potent board numbering 31 members.

In much the same way he revitalized Princeton's programs of study, endowed the Association of American Universities with a sense of purpose in the "McCarthy Era", and made possible the establishment of the James Forrestal Research Center, Dodds will be concerned with the development of one of the country's largest country-day school operations. The two independent schools will continue to be administered separately. However, P.C.D., a junior school since its founding in 1924, will be expanded to include all four high school grades and the combined enrollment of Miss Fine's and P.C.D. will climb from their present plateau of 550 to some 825.

At a point in history when large segments of the country are understandably perturbed by the question of individual excellence in secondary education, a condition of ferment indicated by the acceptance of the Conant Reports on the state of senior and junior high schools, Dodds and his associates will be seeking to capitalize upon the educational resources available in the Princeton Community. Where else in America—the project's planners ask—could schools be organized "to take the fullest advantage of such an array of brains, talents, facilities and enlightened enthusiasm?"

It is perhaps significant that Dodds, the recipient of more than 30 honorary degrees from colleges and universities in this country and overseas, who is now putting the finishing touches to an exhaustive study of the American college presidency, has come full cycle this week. Five decades ago, following his graduation with Phi Beta Kappa honors from Grove City College in his native Pennsylvania, and prior to entering upon graduate study at Princeton and the University of Pennsylvania, Dodds was inducted into the profession of teaching and scholarship—as a teacher of Latin and English in rural Pennsylvania high schools.

For welcoming once again the opportunity of serving as a "launcher and builder"; for sensing that the time is now if American secondary education is ever to live up to its high potentialities; for his achievements as one of the four or five great presidents in the 214-year history of the one-time College of New Jersey; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

THE BIG DRIFT

Record Snow Falls. Princetonians are still digging out of the deepest early snow that has hit this part of the world since 1786. The heaviest December fall on record was on December 27, 1947, but this week's snow of 17 inches is the biggest pre-winter fall in almost 200 years.

It was Sunday morning when Arnold Ryden, Borough superintendent of streets, got a person-to-person phonce call from Weather Services in Boston. A storm, possibly as much as five inches of snow, was on the way. (Weather Services predicted the first snow-flake within minutes of the time it actually fell.)

Mr. Ryden called out about six men and the Borough's new hopper spreader. Then, as the storm grew worse and Weather Services' continuing reports showed it would greatly exceed the five-inch mark, Mr. Ryden called out more and more men and more and more equipment, until there were 18 men, plus off-duty police officers, meter men and assorted administrative personel manning the trucks and reviving exhausted engines as they came back from a stiff tour of shovel duty.

The Borough's newest truck was the worst mechanical casualty: a burned-out clutch and a broken connecting rod at 4 a.m. Monday morning. Mechanics, working through the night, repaired that truck and kept the others alive and kicking. The bulldozer was brought in from the incinerator and it, with the two front-end loaders and the jeep with its plow, took care of the Borough's main arteries.

Township Roads: 66 Miles. The story began early Sunday in the Township, too, where the street-cleaning problem is magnified by the existence of 66 miles of streets and roads and 16 square miles of land in between.

Engineer James Breth called out his 16 men — including four emergency helpers — at 2 p.m. Sunday and they worked a continuous round until mid-morning Tuesday. Five trucks (three of them broke their axles as the work progressed), the big grader and five pieces of rented equipment including two bulldozers, two loaders, an extra grader and a heavy-duty plow scraped away at Township streets and roads. They returned again and again to main arteries as the wind (estimated at 55 miles per hour) sent the snow drifting back across the cleared streets.

Mr. Breth estimates, incidentally, that it would cost the Township between $75,000 and $100,000 to buy the equipment which was rented for the snow-removal project. Rental costs were about $2,000.

Both Borough and Township had severe drifting in open areas and around buildings. The drifting, plus the fact that the temperature remained at a congealing 10 degrees for a long period of time, hampered and slowed snow-removal operations.

The Borough uses seven and eight-ton trucks, and has on order a heavy 10-ton truck "for the next storm," says Borough Engineer Arthur Brokaw.

At Switchboard 22 Hours. A kind of "show-must-go-on" attitude developed as the severity of the storm became apparent. Miss Carolina Scharf manned the Princeton Hospital switchboard for 22 straight hours and Mrs. Jeanette Linderman, the Hospital admissions clerk on week-end duty, stayed through Monday and Tuesday as well.

Mrs. Nora Haverstock, the assistant manager of the Hospital's cafeteria started out at 3:30 a.m. Monday from her home in Lawrenceville. Walking through the storm and catching a ride as she could, Mrs. Haverstock arrived at the Hospital about 10 a.m. Hugh Terry, a Hospital chef, caught a train in Trenton and walked in from Princeton Junction.

Town Topics regrets that because Monday's snow-storm forced it to publish eight pages less than planned, it was unable to accept a considerable amount of display advertising for this issue.

How It Happened

David M. Ludlum, Princeton's weather expert, says that New Jersey was in the blizzard's path because, as a rule, the heaviest band of snow is 200 miles west of the track of the storm—and the track of the storm was 200 miles off the Atlantic coast. Mr. Ludlum, publisher of Weatherwise Magazine, says that the snow would have been a waterfall of rain except for the presence of a cold air barrier lying across northern New York and New England.

"The wind was the real feature of this storm," says Mr. Ludlum, "and the cold. It is most unusual around here to have snow when the thermometer reads as low as 20."

IT WAS THIS WAY EVERYWHERE: Scene at corner of Witherspoon and Spring is typical of the obstacles confronting motorists and pedestrians alike. Snow removal job is proceeding, but it will be a while longer before traffic flow returns to normal. (Staff Photo.)

The Hospital operated with about a third of its staff, and John Kaufman, administrator of the Hospital, Nathaniel McKee, his assistant, and other administrative personnel, washed the dishes, mopped the floors and carried trays to patients. Student nurses, under the supervision of the few nurses available, came to the rescue with their brand-new store of knowledge.

Three babies were born during the storm, all of them to mothers who live far from Princeton Hospital. Mrs. Robert Bartlett of Hopewell entered the hospital Sunday night and gave birth to a boy at 4:20 a.m. Monday. Mrs. Lois Loth came in at 6:15 a.m. Monday from Monmouth Junction and gave birth to a boy shortly after. Mrs. John M. Ross, Jr. of New Brunswick arrived at 3 a.m. Monday — a point thought by weather experts to have been the height of the storm——and had a boy later Monday morning.

Traffic Problems Mount. People who could find a place to park in the Borough found that meters were "on the house." Parking has been limited to one side of Nassau Street in the business district until the travel lane can be widened, and there is no parking on the south side of Nassau between Olden and Murray.

Police found six cars "parked" at the intersection of University Place and College Road, apparently left there by commuters. Borough Police Chief Raymond F. Mondone has announced that the snow-removal ordinance will be enforced and that home-owners will be fined up to $200 if they do not comply. (The ordinance requires removal of snow during the first 12 hours of daylight after the snowfall stops. Home-owners who are out of town will find the cost of snow removal added to their tax bill.)

Public schools in Borough and Township were closed Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with some private schools reopening Wednesday. The condition of parking lots and school bus routes was the determining factor on the decision to re-open the public schools Thursday.

Those commuters who left cars on University Place found themselves without a shuttle to call their own. No trains operated between Princeton and the Junction all day Monday. By Tuesday morning, the "dinky" was running normally, but main-line trains were an hour to an hour-and-a-half off schedule as late as Wednesday afternoon.

Francis J. Ward, passenger agent, said that three commuter trains were out of the running Monday morning. Six usually make the New York run. Stories of how-I-made-my-train were legion: one man skied to the Junction, several walked, all of them hitched rides back into Princeton Monday night because there were no taxis.

Their Christmas Is In Doubt . . . . .

From the 1960 TOWN TOPICS Christmas Appeal:

"A wonderfully courageous young mother, struggling with a wasting disease that requires one blood transfusion after another, is still bewildered by the disappearance of her husband. However, she and her two toddling children are making do in their cramped but spotlessly clean basement apartment. And the same would apply to 33-year old Mrs. T., a prodigious worker, who is planning Christmas for her bouncy 6-year old son whose crippled father leaves the home less and less and knows that he will never work again."

Six days after the appeal had been published in TOWN TOPICS, $1289.27 was at hand. The need this year is greater than ever, and the Family Service Agency, which certifies every case, is hopeful that none will go unaided.

Checks may be made payable to The TOWN TOPICS Christmas Fund and mailed to P.O. Box 664. Contributions may also be left at TOWN TOPICS, 4 Mercer Street, or at Hinkson's, 74 Nassau Street.

Mail Is Slowed. The Princeton Post Office, armed for its seasonal battle with Christmas packages, cared for long lines of customers at parcel post windows even during the worst of the storm on Monday. Only nine employees were at the main post office, and Postmaster Charles Murray found himself selling stamps and stamping packages.

No mail went in or out of the Princeton post office from Sunday afternoon until 7:45 Tuesday morning. Mail is trucked in from Trenton and trucks from Trenton were staying right where they were.

One mail delivery—the accumulation of the weekend—was made to business offices on Monday. City foot routes were covered Tuesday, and deliveries were made wherever the snow was not above the postman's head. By Wednesday, the post office was trying to make all deliveries, rural and city, but "there are still a lot we can't make," Mr. Murray explained.

Life in the snow . . . into a market, crowded with people seeking milk and bread, both of which were in short supply all over town, came a customer bundled to her eyebrows against the snow: "I'd like a bottle of capers, if you please," she said to the clerk . . . a student telephoned the University secretary's office on Monday to make reservations for his parents for commencement . . . a young clerk at Educational Testing Service, almost the only person in her

CORPORATION FORMED

Joining Two Schools. Princeton's two oldest private schools, Miss Fine's and Princeton Country Day, have been joined together as one corporation and will be known as "The Princeton Day Schools." The announcement was made this week by Mrs. Barklie McK. Henry, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Miss Fine's, and Richard W. Baker, Jr., chairman of the Board at Princeton Country Day.

Dr. Harold W. Dodds, president emeritus of Princeton University, will serve as chairman of the new Board of Trustees. Although joined in one corporation, the two independent institutions will continue to be administered separately. Miss Shirley Davis is headmistress of Miss Fine's School and Peter F. Rothermel is headmaster of Princeton Country Day.

The two schools plan to move eventually to a new 70-acre campus on The Great Road and a fund-raising campaign for the new plant will start next spring. Most of the land for the new campus has been given by Mr. and Mrs. Dean Mathey.

Miss Fine's provides classes for girls from kindergarten through 12th grade and for boys from kindergarten through third grade. Princeton Country Day takes boys from the fourth grade through the ninth. Under the new plan, the boys' school will continue through high school and both schools will be served by a co-educational lower school, kindergarten through fourth grade, which will operate in a separate plant on the same campus.

Joint Operations Planned. From fifth grade through high school, the two schools will share facilities, special classrooms, laboratories and faculty to a large extent, although each will operate under the direction of its own headmaster.

By combining students and sharing facilities the two schools will be able to offer advanced courses in such fields as Greek, Russian, the sciences and the creative arts, Mrs. Henry and Mr. Baker point out. The Trustees also hope that the schools, together, will be able to retain distinguished teachers for informal visits and seminars and for occasional lectures before large audiences.

For several years, both schools have been forced to turn away qualified applicants for lack of space. Princeton Country Day School has been under increasing pressure to continue through the senior year of high school, and it is felt that a full college preparatory program will strengthen the school, not only academically, but in terms of morale as well.

The school, now crowded to its limit, will lose its playing fields when Princeton University, which owns them, begins to implement its plans for expansion in the Broadmead area. At Miss Fine's, playground and playing field space are inadequate. The building is old and, in the words of the trustees, "inappropriate." The school once was the old Princeton Inn.

Enrollment Limits Set. At present, there are 318 students at Miss Fine's and 200 at Princeton Country Day. At the new schools, the maximum sizes will be 210 at Miss Fine's, kindergarten through fourth grade; 180, fifth through eighth grades and 120, ninth through twelfth grades for a total of 300. The total for the two schools will be 825.

Architects for the new school buildings will be John C.B. Moore and Robert S. Hutchins of New York, architects for the University's new department of music building. Michael Rapuano, well-known in Princeton for his work on Community Gardens and his designs for Educational Testing Service and Marquand Park, will be landscape engineer and site planner.

In addition to Dr. Dodds, Mrs. Henry and Mr. Baker, the other members of the combined Board of Trustees are Frederick B. Adams, Jr., James I. Armstrong, R. Manning Brown, Mrs. Daniel D. Dickey, C. William Edwards, Warren P. Elmer, Jr., Harold B. Erdman, Jeremiah S. Finch, Samuel B. Hamill and Maurice F. Healy, Jr.

Also, Robert C. Kuser, Arthur S. Lane, Mrs. Douglas H. MacNeil, Sanders Maxwell, David B. Miller, C. McKim Norton, Henry H. Patton, Frank A. Petito, Mrs. Robert G. Potter, Jr., George T. Reynolds, Mrs. James Shriver, Edgar S. Smith, Chester R. Stroup, Robert Strunsky, Mrs. Everett P. Tomlinson, David D. Wicks, Raymond S. Willis, Jr. and Hibben Ziesing.

BRIGHT EYES, BRIGHT LIGHTS: Candlelighting ceremony during annual "Hanging of the Greens" program last Sunday at Princeton YM-YWCA was obviously fun for Mrs. John P. Young of 136 Clover Lane and her four children. They are (left to right) Deirdre, 6; Renee, 2; Mrs. Young; Jay, 4, and Moira-Jon, 7.

GO-AHEAD GIVEN

On Power Substation. Borough Council has approved a resolution of the zoning board which gives Princeton University permission to build a power sub-station on Charlton Street.

Council took the action at its regular meeting Tuesday after it was reported that representatives of the one property owner who might have reason to object had declined to register a complaint.

Five Council members voted in favor of granting the permission. Councilman Sorenson abstained on grounds of conflict of interest. He is a member of the University's building committee for the engineering quadrangle, a facility which the sub-station will serve.

The Council set February 14 as the date for a public hearing on the assessment of costs of sidewalk installation on Hamilton Avenue. The certified cost of construction was reported to be $6,099.63. Half of this cost will be absorbed by increasing the assessed valuations of affected property. The other half is paid by the Borough.

Expectations now are that the State Legislature will take steps in January to boost by one cent the tax on a pack of cigarettes. . . . If a $30,000,000 bond issue is approved next November, the added tax will be repealed after 18 months. If not, it will become permanent . . . the funds will be used to add badly-needed buildings to the state's institutional facilities, particularly for the mentally-retarded and the indigent aged.

A thief entered the University Store Saturday night shortly before 10 but was frightened away by a burglar alarm before he could take anything . . access was gained by piling cinder blocks under a lavatory window.

Wilbur F. Kerr, 81, 103 Jefferson Road, was the driver.

Karl F. Bonn, a member of Mercer Engine Co. No. 3, has been named chief of the Princeton Fire Department for 1961, succeeding James Pace . . Alfred Packer, who belongs to Princeton Engine Co. No. 1, will serve as first assistant chief, with Samuel J. Davison of Hook and Ladder second assistant.

The brunt of the big snow struck on December 12—three months to the day after Hurricane Donna paid her visit to Princeton . . . the hurricane, of course, was far more damaging, but the snow more disruptive . . . in contrast to the accidents caused by the September wind and rain, not a single accident involving automobiles or pedestrians was reported to either Borough or Township police during the blizzard.

Princeton has been selected by the University as the site for its annual April conference, a three-day gathering of alumni with members of the administration and faculty to consider the state of its present and future . . . the session is planned by the National Alumni Association, of which Walker W. An awful lot of people were late—or never made it at all—Monday. Old Man Winter refuses to take the blame for this one—he isn't due until Wednesday afternoon, precisely at 3:21. Says he'll make it, too.

Before that, things are scheduled to get a little better. Those rumors about another big snowstorm don't check out, the Man says. A gradually warming trend is setting in, with temperatures actually scheduled to move above freezing. No more snow this fall, anyway.

Councilman Walker joined in praising borough employees, many of whom he said, "worked 'round the clock." But he added that steps should be taken to insure that "we have proper equipment in proper working order."

SHAKESPEARE EXPOSED

Triangle Returns Saturday. With the artistic and commercial success of last year's "Breakfast in Bedlam" providing a demanding standard, the University Triangle Club scored a qualified but impressive success with its 69th annual production, "A Midsummer Night Screame." The show opened last Thursday night and will return to McCarter for a one-night stand on Saturday.

This year's production, unlike "Breakfast," is a "book" show, a musical comedy in three acts based on the assumption that Queen Elizabeth I was the real author of Shakespeare's plays. This type of production, with its need for a sustained and integrated conception, is a far more ambitious project than a revue, and "A Midsummer Night Screame" reflects credit on everyone concerned with it.

Elizabeth, unquestionably the star of the show, was played as a bawdy, sensual wisecracker by Geoffrey Smith. Mr. Smith was entertaining throughout, and in the excellent "We Are the Queen We Are" number, he reached comic heights attained by few Triangle performers in recent years.

The task of finding an unknown to assume the authorship of Elizabeth's plays (so she could go back to running England) was given to Walter Raleigh, played by John Crowther, the club's president. Mr. Crowther, who also supervised the writing of the show's book and contributed several lyrics, made up for his suboperatic singing voice by exhibiting a beguiling ability to recite Elizabethan dialogue meaningfully.

The show's best singer and dancer, Sandy Kennedy, was properly Boy-Scoutish as the slow-thinking Shakespeare. Mr. Kennedy's attractive tenor voice was in particularly fine form in "London," a bright number with some melodic similarities to Gershwin's "Everything I've Got Belongs to You."

Ballet Is Effective. Kennedy and Roy Young, whose Anne Hathaway was a neglected wife with a broad Southern accent, put their dancing abilities to good use in a comic dream sequence called "The Muddy Avon Ballet." Mr. Young's toe-dancing in the number must be seen to be believed.

Others who performed admirably were Bert Wunderlich as Mother Shakespeare, a shrill Cockney with low tastes; Hugh Bartlett and John Simon as the Rosencrantz-and-Guildenstern Spanish intriguers who plot to keep Elizabeth writing so they can attack England, and Ken Bordner as Macbeth.

"MacBeth" as Musical Comedy. The 20-minute "Macbeth" sequence, which presented the tragedy as a modern-day musical comedy, was the brilliant highlight of the show. The number was flawlessly executed by the singers and dancers, and the libretto was a thoughtful and tremendously funny interpretation of the Bard.

From the time the three witches appeared, chanting "Fair is foul, foul is fair" as a cross between "Varsity Drag" and an Afro-Cuban mambo, until the end, when the witches and the trees of Dunsinane Wood joined in the traditional Triangle kick-chorus, it was a delight.

Bunn Appears. A good part of the third act was given over to a filmed "newsreel" of the attempts of Mother Shakespeare to swim the English Channel and the defeat of the Spanish Armada. The film, which included a "cameo" appearance by Triangle Trustee B. Franklin Bunn, was hilarious in its opening scenes, but became confused and overworked toward the end. There have been assurances from the club that its length will be drastically cut before Saturday's performance; this should heighten its effectiveness.

The show's dialogue was frequently sharp and amusing. In one scene, a loud barmaid approached Shakespeare, saying: "Hey, Bill, why don't you write a poem about me?" "What's your name?" the Bard asked. "Lucrece" came the enthusiastic reply.

At another point, two young ladies were discussing Shakespeare's latest play in accents of pure Brooklynese. "Say, Gertrude, how'd you like Romeo and Juliet?" asked the first. "Well, Cecile," said her friend "If you ask me, it's just 'West Side Story' all over again."

Length Problem. The show contained a couple of lapses in taste—one particularly offensive bit of double-entendre word play was cut from the song "Espana" after two performances—but its length was a more serious problem. It ran almost two and a half hours; even the highly professional Triangle group was unable to maintain top form for all of this protracted time.

The work of director Milton Lyan, choreographer Peter Hamilton and costume designer Jean Vaughan, Triangle's professional employees, was consistently excellent. Daniel Perry's sets and the lighting by Joseph L. Delafield were simple and effective, especially in the "Macbeth" number. The score, written chiefly by John Simon, was pleasant throughout and brilliant in "Macbeth." Under John J. Keyser's baton, the 14-piece undergraduate orchestra performed its difficult assignment with skill.

This show is a worthy addition to Triangle's distinguished history. Those who missed it in its first four performances should regard the club' unusual decision to bring it back to Princeton this Saturday as an opportunity not to be overlooked.

DO-SI-BARDOT: A French dancing school is the scene for mystery, as well as terpsichore, for Brigitte Bardot and Henri Vidal in "Come Dance With Me." The color film, with dubbed English dialogue, will be featured through Saturday at the Garden.

GIELGUD HERE FRIDAY

In Sequel To "Ages of Man." Sir John Gielgud will present "Love and Death," a sequel to his previous one-man show, "Shakespeare's Ages of Man," this Friday, December 16, at 8:30 p.m. at McCarter Theatre. The show, which is composed of selections from the works of major English poets, is being sponsored here by C-K Productions. Tickets will be available at the box office the night of the performance.

Sir John's appearance here will be the American premiere and one of an extremely limited number of performances of "Love and Death." While in the United States, Sir John is also assisting in the casting of a new play, "Big Fish, Little Fish," which he will direct. Rehearsals for the new play are scheduled to begin in February

"Love and Death" will be performed in a few selected cities between directing sessions for the new play. It is also scheduled for a limited Broadway run in the distant future. The program includes works ranging from tragedy to farce upon the subject of love and death.

The program was arranged by Sir David Cecil. Authors represented include John Donne, John Milton, Andrew Marvel, Robert Herrick, John Bunyan, Robert Browning, Alfred Tennyson, Alexander Pope and John Keats.

PACE TOO SLOW

In PHS Play. This seems to have been the year of the farce in Princeton, ranging from APA's rollicking "Seepin" and Theatre Intime's unexpected interpretation of "The Jew of Malta" to the Triangle Club's ebullient perody, "A Midsummer Night Scream." In a farce, even more than in other types of drama, success hinges on the skill of the direction. Unless the play moves quickly and crisply, it loses its humor.

This was the problem with Princeton High School's production last weekend of Beaumont and Fletcher's "The Knight of the Burning Pestle." All 30 members of the cast were generally believable, and some were outstanding. The costumes were attractive and the lighting effective. But the whole production seemed almost to be going on in slow motion, with silences falling after lines and gaps between entrances and exits. The tight, swift pace which makes a play come alive was missing.

The lack of pace was especially unfortunate in this particular play. Written as a satire on the plays of romantic chivalry popular in the 1600's, it is long on words and short on action. The basic plot is an artificial one that prevents audience identification with the cherecters, so that any appeal has to come from the sharp wit. Without speed of action, the wit does not seem sharp.

The play depicts a London merchant and his wife who go to the theatre and, disliking the proposed play, climb upon the stage and dictate their own plot. They cast their stupid apprentice, Ralph, in the leading role of "The Knight of the Burning Pestle" and then sit on the stage, making comments and generally interfering throughout the performance.

Family Spats Amusing. Lee Hymerling and Carolyn Smith did exceedingly well in the long and difficult roles of the merchent and his wife, and their spats with each other were the most genuinely emusing parts of the play. Lawrence Hughes as Ralph, the apprentice, was a completely believable dolt, climbing in and out of an artificial horse with straight-faced aplomb and blandly shouting directions to a completely disorderly group of soldiers. The soldiers' confused march, incidentallly, was the only really funny slapstick in the show.

Other outstanding performers included Julie Fremon, an unusually graceful girl with a light, clear voice and a sparkling stage presence; Travis Bryant, whose resonant voice and confident manner almost made an unbelievable character come to life, and Nancy Sullivan, who accomplished the amazing feat of turning a shrewdish wife into an amusing, appealing person.

Mrs. Wilma Gannon was director of the show, with Monica Knorr as student director and Constance Hull as assistant student director. Joseph Daetwyler was stage manager. A total of 38 other students and 14 faculty advisers served on the various production committees, including business staff, properties, costumes, stage construction, electrical squad and ushers. Make-up, posters and scenery were under the direction of the Art Club and Art Classes 3 and 4.

THE PLAYHOUSE

G.I. Blues (December 14-17) is an Elvis Presley picture, filmed in Germany, about the efforts of a young soldier to win a $300 bet by spending the night with a German dancer (Juliet Prowse). This story, together with a sub-plot about an illegitimate child, makes the film unsuitable for children.

Presley sings ten songs, all of which are unsuitable for adults. Therefore the film is suitable for no one. It will probably do a roaring business. We shall discuss it no longer.

The Village of the Damned (December 18-20), adapted from a novel called "The Midwich Cuckoos" by John Wyndham, is an eerie science fiction chiller. It is hindered by a silly script and an undistinguished cast headed by George Sanders and Barbara Shelley, but the scariness of the basic premise keeps attention from lagging. Tom Howard's tension-building photographic effects also keep things moving.

The film opens on a small English town, all of whose residents have been put to sleep by causes unknown. The government is alerted, but troops are withdrawn when the people wake up with no apparent ill effects. Mr. Sanders, a prominent citizen, is asked to report any additional strange happenings.

His first report is that all the women of the town, including his wife, Barbara Shelley, have been simultaneously and inexplicably rendered pregnant. When the children are born, all on the same day, they all have blond heir and peculiar eyes. The youngsters grow far more rapidly than normal, and Mr. Sanders is hard-pressed to keep the villagers from killing them, especially when it becomes apparent that the children have been killing villagers.

If this strikes you as fourth-rate Alfred Hitchcock stuff, you're right. But even fourth-rate Hitchcock is intermittently entertaining. The picture is in color.

The Three Worlds of Gulliver (December 21-27) was released too late for consideration in this issue. A review will appear next week. The film stars Kermit Matthews and Jo Morrow, and is in widescreen and color.

THE GARDEN

Come Dance With Me (December 13-17) is the latest color vehicle for Brigitte Bardot, the aging French nymphet who can make any man feel like Humbert Humbert. The script is genial, giving Brigitte a chance to dash around in various states of deshabille and to use all three of her subtly differing pouts, to say nothing of her two smiles. Dawn Addams and Henri Vidal also appear.

The plot is as follows: The owner of a dancing school has been killed. Brigitte's husband is accused of the crime. Brigitte takes a job in the dancing school in an effort to find out who really did the dirty deed.

The film has dubbed English dialogue, which is a shame. On the few occasions when we have been allowed to hear Brigitte talk, her voice has struck us as pleasant.

Richard III (December 19), released in 1956, is an effective interpretation of the Shakespeare play. Laurence Olivier, who appears in the title role, was also the producer and director. He has taken certain liberties with the play in transferring it from stage to screen, but these in

ON THE HOUSE

Gifts for the Home. Sometimes it seems as though the nicest house present one could have at Christmas-time would be a little peace and quiet, but we are concerned here with gayer and more material offerings ranging from baubles to set your Christmas tree ablaze—figuratively, we hope—right down to the guest towel for your towel-rack.

Trimmings! Howe Nurseries, in Pennington, offers a Jingle Bell music box for your table with brass candlesticks and red candles surrounded by greens and glittered red berries. A six-inch-wide table centerpiece consists of candlesticks made of green plastic straw, fuzzed glittered and arranged with gold and white ivy leaves, red berries and red candles. (In this same straw material, Howe has "Candy Kids," "Fluff Girls" "Mr. and Mrs. Snowman," and so on.)

For your town decorating, Howe's offers cones, knickknacks, glitter, basic forms and so on. Christmas trees here are Douglas fir, balsam, Scotch pine and Norway spruce. Living trees, balled in burlap, range from table to banquet hall size.

Allen's Flower Shop in Hopewell, has garlands of fine-textured plastic pine with cones ($10 for eight feet), or pine garlands with snow-berries ($8 for eight feet). Matching kissing balls combine pine cones, berries and promise, all in one package. A toplary tree in white, covered with white doves and glittery balls, has tiny wrapped packages under its lowest branches.

You may place with Allen's your order for a natural centerpiece made of greens and winter-berries. No two are alike because they are custom-made according to Mr. Allen's imagination. They last for 3 or four weeks. Mixed evergreen, holly or Della Robbia wreaths may also be made to order. Why not try the dried bayberry wreath, all white, or pink, blue and gold, for $15?

At Gene Seal's, you may buy such unusual natural greens as cryptomeria, berried juniper, Koster blue spruce, as well as the more usual English and native holly, white and red pine, balsam, partridge berries, winterberries, rosette cones and so on.

Cummins Shop festoons your house this year with heavy ropes of silver or gold tinsel (no tarnish). Ropes measure 18 feet, and are about three-and-one-half inches across at $2.95 and $4.95, depending on weight. Pine-cone elves would hold anybody's place card. They are made in the Black Forest of Japan, six for 75 cents.

Artificial flowers and greens light things up at Country Mouse, where you'll find a healthy, fake poinsettia, and little fake poinsettias about three inches across that make a festoon of lights for a Christmas tree. So do some little candy canes, and a most unusual cluster of grapes and leaves which light up in a Baccanalian garland.

Country Mouse has those Santa Claus mugs in pared down modern style with cocoa pitcher instead of punch bowl. Holly picks provide a handle for those Christmas hors d'oeuvres, and pine and red-candle place mats provide a place to put your Santa mug.

To dress up an everyday candlestick for the holiday, Country Mouse suggests a metal ring to put around the base of your candle. Tiny colored ornaments hang from it in an arching cascade of color. Your candle might be one of the hand-dipped ones in this shop. We liked the 14-inch wax cylinder, the square pillar and the blunt cone of wine, bottle green or gold set down on an earthenware saucer.

End of the day? Snuff candle out with a 98 cent brass snuffer.

Christmas Rose. At the Princeton Decorating Shop, you'll find a cut-glass bowl filled with plastic holly, white and red roses and sprigs of white butterfly bush, flanked by candlesticks. Want a pair of six-inch rabbits nibbling holly leaves?

Clayton's puts appliqued felt Christmas designs on a tree skirt, stocking or tablecloth. Little angels, Santas, trees and wreath are there for you to choose from. You may also buy glitter by the yard, and sparkles, sequins, beads and trifles by the handful. We like the idea of tie-on-trinkets for children's gifts: Japanese hand - painted bells, cornucopias of holly-berries, and so on.

Do-It-Yourself?

People make lamp bases out of everything except trash cans, and the suggestion of the season, so far as we are concerned, is the one offered by The Silver Shop on Palmer Square which proposes that you buy its shiny old copper still and make yourself a lamp out of it. A spirit lamp, we presume.

This waggish old still was probably used in the Jersey pine barrens to make Jersey Lightnin' or some such brew. It's about two and one-half feet tall, with handles and the truncated stumps of its pipes sticking out, sputnik-fashion from the top piece. The copper is in magnificent condition. The Silver Shop says $65, and you deal yourself with the revenooers.

Kessler and Bellis in Hopewell, arranged under your tree a white non-inflammable tree cloth traced delicately with red or green poinsettias, trees or Santas. $2.50.

Round Christmas tablecloths in white with gold pines encircle the tables at Philip Farkouh in the Princeton Shopping Center. There are also bridge-table sizes that read "Noel" and "Merry Christmas." A Christmas runner says "Noel" at each end. Terry guest towels display a red and white Santa with candy cane against the white ground. $2.75 for three.

Calendar towels for 1961 come in a tube with hanger, designed in Medieval, Pennsylvania Dutch or herb patterns at $1 each.

Home Decor in the Princeton Shopping Center has Santa all over terry accessories, like toaster covers, potholders and even a puppet wash-mitt for children. A vinyl white tablecloth has a washable holly and bell design. Terry guest towels in this shop are white no way interfere with the substance of the work.

This is a brooding and powerful story of evil ambition, and Sir Laurence's interpretation explores the subject in great depth. The cast, which also includes Cedric Hardwicke and John Gielgud, is admirable, and good use has been made of pictorial symbolism. This, incidentally, is the version of "Richard III" that has been shown on television with extraordinary success. It is in color. Recommended.

The Crowded Sky (December 20-21) is a propaganda film urging us to do something about the crowded condition in our commercial and military airlanes. This is no doubt a legitimate cause, and no doubt one we should consider more than most of us do, but as drama, at least in this film, it is Grade Z.

Centering around a disastrous midair collision between a Navy jet and a commercial airliner, the script brings before us a singularly uninteresting collection of type characters left over from "The High and the Mighty."

We have a flight captain whose son doesn't understand him, a stewardess tortured by her unrequited love for the co-pilot, and a comic lady theatrical agent. Their personal problems are brought out in a seemingly endless series of mindless finishnicks. The stars are Dana Andrew, Rhonda Fleming, Efrem Zimbalist Jr., John Kerr, Anne Francis and Keenan Wynn, and the film is in Technicolor.

Stainless Christmas. Corning's new blue and white electrical pieces are in many shops — University Store, Urken's, 206 Hardware. These are the Pyroceram (missile nosecone stuff) pieces in lusceni white that will freeze, cook and serve with equal skill. Coffee pot and 10-inch skillet are $29.95.

University Store also likes G.E., and displays for your consideration an electric knife sharpener which also accommodates scissors and pencils, an electric trivet and a frying pan that tilts to shunt the grease aside.

A Van Zandt's in Blawenburg, you may buy a coffeemeker that brews from 12 to 30 cups and then keeps the coffee warm. It's a Party Perk, at $24.95. Canfield's electric mixer has meat grinder and ten speeds for $33.

Who wouldn't enjoy G.E.'s portable travel steam-and-dry iron at 206 Hardware for $11.95?

The favorite appliance at Urken's is the electric shoe polisher by Ronson, but they also like Salton's hot tray with automatic food warmer. Just don't get the two mixed up.

University Store's shoe polisher is the Dremel, with two buffers and a drawer for extra shoe-laces, in case you lack confidence in the ones you have. Suction cups hold the polisher to the floor. Costs $34.95.

Gourmet Princeton has a Steak Charmer which you insert into a steak to see whether it's done, or still rare. The patio Hotray at this show now has a plexiglas dome which clamps onto the hot tray and keeps all the heat right where you want it. Tray (patio model) is $24.95, dome is $12.95.

At 206 Hardware in the new 206 Shopping Center, there are cook-and-serve tools by Flint-ware, designed, apparently, for the Flintstones. Buy them in open stock or in a rack, six to the box. They are stainless steel with melamine handles.

Rorer's carving set is by Queen's Cutlery, and it comes in a wooden box. Matching steak knives have either bone or wood handles. Rorer's, which is in many ways a country store, has a country man's eye for the weather, and here you'll find barometers that tell you temperature and humidity, barometer-thermometers that hang on the wall, and indoor-outdoor thermometers that tell you what's doing everywhere.

INSIDE CHRISTMAS

The Sound of Music. And if you want to know what's going on inside, it's probably the new Scott 314 tuner at the Princeton Music Center on Palmer Square. The shop also suggests the Type-A Garrard changer with its six-pound turntable, automatic and manual control.

The records you play might be Dylan Thomas' "A Child's Christmas in Wales" or volumes one and two of "100 Years of the Music America Likes Best." "Sing Along with Mitch", is a record which comes with lyrics, so that everybody can sing—and right in tune, even, "Mitch", of course, is Mitch Miller.

University Store and Princeton Music Center both have a 20 - percent - off - on records Christmas present for you.

Transistor radios are still a big thing for Christmas giving. Van Zandt's has Philco's pocket-size portable (3x6 inches) at $24.95 and $39.95. A transistor radio that comes with bracket so that it can be used in your car, is $52. A lock and key come with this one, if you can bet.

Princeton Radio Center has transistor models at $24.95, and Tiger Auto offers transistors, table models and a specially priced AM-FM model. Nassau Service has Motorola's pocket-size 6-transistor radio.

THRILL TO A NEW EXPERIENCE!

Makes nail care a pleasure!

with DiamonDeb NAIL DRESSER

There's a new thrill in nail care in store for you when you glide the feather-lite DIAMON-DEB Nail Dresser over your nails. Never before have you experienced the swift, yet gentle shaping action a level abrasive surface composed of countless tiny gem crystals can give to fingers or toes.

STOP NAIL SPLITTING AND PEELING!

What's more — Diamon-Deb prevents and corrects splitting and peeling nails. The secret is in the exclusive "DIAMALITE" surface that has no harsh edges which leave tiny indentations on nail ends, or cause nail layers to separate. No scratching or scraping or attack to sensitive nerves. And the pure nickel metal with its "DIAMALITE" surface is sanitary — can be sterilized without affecting its permanent rustproof surface! Works equally well whether nails are steel hard or paper thin, too! Essential in cases of "problem nails" to preserve the nail benefits gained from taking internal preparations.

Come in and try this professional proven and endorsed manicuring miracle — particularly if you have a nail problem! Available in 3 sizes: 4-inch purse or pocket size $1.00; 6-inch general purpose size $1.25; 8-inch Professional model $1.50.

CALDWELL HOME BURNED: The rambling ranch-style home belonging to Mrs. Charles W. Caldwell, widow of the Princeton football coach, was totally destroyed by fire early Friday evening while Mrs. Caldwell was out on a brief errand. Six pieces of fire equipment and more than 100 firemen responded to the general alarm. Coach Caldwell, who died in 1957, had collected many trophies during his 25 years as coach, and many of them were destroyed in the blaze.

ing yard were proceeding according to schedule. The Borough Attorney expressed hopes that negotiations could be completed by "the first of the year."

In other action, Council unanimously approved a recommendation by the zoning board which will permit two-family occupancy of a house at 43 Spring Street, owned by the Princeton Eagles Homes Association, and granted a raffle permit to the Princeton chapter of Hadassah.

CALDWELL HOME BURNS

Trophies Are Lost. Trophies collected by the late Charles W. Caldwell during 25 years of football coaching were lost Friday when the frame house belonging to his widow, Mrs. Lucy Caldwell, was destroyed by fire.

The one-story ranch - style dwelling at 20 College Road burned early Friday evening as Mrs. Caldwell was driving her cleaning woman home after a day's work. Only the walls and garage of the ranch home were left standing after three fire companies battled the blaze for an hour and a half.

The fire was discovered at 6:35 p.m. by James Blair, an undergraduate who had come to the house to meet a girl who was staying with Mrs. Caldwell for the weekend. The girl was with Mrs. Caldwell when the fire broke out.

The cause of the fire is undetermined, but Mrs. Caldwell thinks it may have been caused by an defective wire.

Among the trophies lost in the fire were the autographs of scores of Princeton football players. The names had originally been written on the wallpaper of a room in a former home of the Caldwells, and after Mr. Caldwell's death in 1957, his widow arranged for the autographed wallpaper to be painstakingly removed from the original wall and hung in her new home.

Some of the trophies and Mrs. Caldwell's personal belongings were salvaged by firemen.

CORRECTION

Contrary to the statement released last week by the Borough Police Department, and attributed to deputy county coroner J. Leonard Berry, the cause of death of ten-week old Chapin Carpenter of 33 Cleveland Lane was not suffocation. An autopsy was performed at Princeton Hospital but the actual cause of death remains undetermined.

BIRTH LIST

Hospital Has 11 Arrivals. A total of 11 children, seven girls and four boys, was born to area residents last week in Princeton Hospital.

Daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Trites, 161 Linden Lane, December 4; Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Bronn, 230 Ridgewood Road, December 5; Mr. and Mrs. Wade Stephens, Hamill House, Lawrenceville; and Mr. and Mrs. John Dale, 20 Hodge Road, Franklin Park, both on December 7.

Other parents of daughters were Mr. and Mrs. Allen D. Raymond III, 46 Merritt Drive, Nassau Estates, December 9; Mr. and Mrs. Gary Nash, 79 Model Avenue, Hopewell; and Mr. and Mrs. Rodney J. Guy, Route 206, Belle Mead, both on December 10.

Sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Thropp, 7 Center Street, Hopewell, December 5; Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Kozesnik, Neshanic Station, December 7; Mr. and Mrs. Ivory Jackson, Mount Farms, December 8; and Mr. and Mrs. Alan G. Bridge, 224-A Marshall Street, December 9.

KIWANIANS GIVE $1600

To Three Groups. The Kiwanis Club of Princeton has presented gifts totaling $1600 to the children's unit of the New Jersey Neuro Psychiatric Institute, the Princeton Homemaker Service and the citizens committee for the United Nations. The gifts were made possible by the Kiwanis lecture-film series which concluded its 1960 program at McCarter Theatre last week.

Kiwanis has donated to the children's unit at NJNPI for the past several years in an effort to provide special activities on an individual basis to children undergoing treatment. The Homemaker Service was organized under Kiwanis sponsorship and has received continuing support from the group. Kiwanians have also served on the citizens committee for the U.N.

MUSIC PROGRAM PLANNED

By Woman's Club. The Woman's Club of Princeton will have a program of Christmas music at its meeting this Thursday at 1 p.m. in the Unitarian Church.

Mrs. John M. Brown, program chairman, has announced that Anetta Rosser, violinist, and Gladys Richards, harpist, will play Christmas music from many lands.

The Wyman Club madrigal group will present a Christmas cantata by the 18th century composer Vincent Lubeck. The group will be conducted by Barbara C. Lewis and will be accompanied by Ann Florey and Annetta Rosser, violins; Mary Long, cello; and Renah Meyer, piano.

RING IN THE NEW

Y Plans Teenage Party. The YM-YWCA will sponsor a New Year's Eve party for local high school students on Saturday, December 31, beginning at 9 p.m.

Mrs. Martin Lewis and Mrs. Charles A. Hurford have announced that the evening's program will include dancing to the music of a seven-piece band. A midnight candle light service and supper has also been planned.

Invitations will be sent to all high school students, but reservations will be limited to 75 couples. Reservations may be obtained by calling the YM-YWCA at WA 4-4825.

JOINT EXHIBIT PLANNED

By Local Artists. Mrs. C. W. Johnston and Mrs. C. W. Pressey, both of Belle Mead, will present a joint exhibition of their paintings at the Town and Country Inn, Route 206, South Somerville, beginning this Friday and continuing through January.

The exhibit will comprise scenes of New Jersey as well as some portraits and still life studies in both oil and water color.

Mr. Johnston, a graduate of Pratt Institute in New York City, is president of the Raritan Valley Arts Association and is a former art teacher. Mrs. Pressey, a graduate of Douglass College, is a member of the Raritan Valley Arts Association and the art department of the Somerville Civic League.

MAILBOX

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

May I use the medium of TOWN TOPICS to express my gratitude to the members of the Princeton Volunteer Fire Department and the Borough Police? Last Friday night, when our home was lost through fire, both departments answered the alarm with the greatest possible speed. They were most efficient and very considerate to those of us intimately concerned with the fire.

In particular, I want to thank each individual member of the Fire Department who came to help.

$1465 RAISED

By Vassar Club, Mrs. Frederick Gallagher of the Vassar Club of Central New Jersey has announced that $1465.66 has been raised by this year's annual Scholarship Ball, an increase over 1959. Proceeds from the dance give a scholarship each year to a girl from the central New Jersey area.

Mrs. Sheldon Jones, who attended the Vassar fall council meeting at Poughkeepsie, reported that plans for the College's Centennial in June are under way and that a conference of internationnl speakers will be held in March. Miss Barbara Ward, noted economist, will keynote the conference.

Mrs. Jones also reported that Miss Joan Yeaton of Pennington who attends Miss Fine's School will enter Vassar next fall.

LIBRARY IS GOAL

Of Lawrence Township Unit. A group of Lawrence Township residents have formed a committee to work for the creation of a branch of the County Library in Lawrence Township in 1961.

Mrs. Jack Silverstein of 146 Lakewood Drive, Trenton, is chairman of the group, and Mrs. Henry David of 1 Jill Lane, Nassau Estates, is secretary. Committee members will soon begin circulating petitions calling on the Board of Freeholders to establish a Lawrence Township library.

Those wishing to assist in the work of circulating petitions have been asked to contact Mrs. Silverstein or Mrs. David. Copies will be available on the bookmobile and at the Ewing Branch of the County Library.

A Library Commission has tried three times in the past two years to secure funds for the project. The Commission has estimated that the operating expense of a new branch would be about $20,000 annually.

LIBRARY OFFERS FILMS

On Travel In Canada. The Princeton Public Library has announced that a second series of Canadian travel films will be available until January 31. The films, which may be reserved by calling the library, are 16 mm., color with sound. The following titles are available: "Ottawa, Canada's Capital," "Fishing the Foothills Province" and "Up in the Border Country."

It's New To Us

From the Galleries. Reproductions of prints or fine originals are on hand this Christmas for someone on your list who collects works of art. The University Store has Chinese scrolls from $1.98, of all things, to $20. Children's prints in this shop cover Alice's doings in Wonderland, cowboys and Indians and so on. They are two by four feet.

Rina Galleries has acquired some delightful Rajput Indian paintings done in tempera, of magnificently gory battle scenes in which warriors with serene, sloe-eyed faces hack each other to bits. These enchanting little pictures are about $25 each.

Pre-Columbian sculpture at Rina and also at Gallery 100 is modestly priced for the beginning collector. Gallery 100 has pieces from $30 to $99. Buy your wife the Seated Woman and see what her reaction is.

Original lithographs at Gallery 100 come from the studios of Shahn, Prestopino, Friedberg, Chirico, Chagall and Rouault, to name a few. These are all under $100. Splendid salon photographs are available at $25. Or, you might consider the Ikle portfolio at $45, or $7.50 for each separate print. And for a dollar, you may have a bright and masterful poster, but how can you choose just one from so many?

Little Gallery, on Palmer Square, offers serigraphs by California Artists, in a collection of modestly priced art works. There is a wide selection and a wide collection here, too.

Ceramic pieces seem to be in favor this year. Gallery 100 has a group by William Parry of Bala Cynwyd, for prices in the neighborhood of $15. Look at the three nested bowls, for example, or the deep bowl cut down sharply on two of its sides, or the little round dish with its perforated cover. Mr. Parry uses glazes and rough surfaces in a highly pleasing way.

Somewhat more conventional, but just as original are the ceramic pieces at the Home Furnishings Shop on Witherspoon where Tanya Eybye displays her small vases, sculptured pieces, candlesticks and oil-base lamp bases.

Our favorite accessory piece for Christmas giving is the Tibetan teapot, bronze and brass, at Rina Galleries. It's almost as big as that Party-Perk Rina also has, in its Asiatic department, a silver inlaid Japanese flower arranging vase, tall with a flaring lip and silver flowers fastened to each side.

Boxes and Phones. Gene Seal adds to the floral collection this year with some German pottery done in pleasing tones of terra-cotta, grey and brown, eminently suited to the informal modern home. Prices start at 75 cents, which is informal enough for anybody. Hyalyn pottery is quite different, in stark black and white geometric forms. Bowls, vases and dishes in this line are about $2.50.

Boxes, boxes, boxes—that's The Leopard's Head this season! For $25, you may have a cloisonne box in a deep and earthy terra-cotta with matching shallow bowl...brass caddy with lion handle in greens and royal...a one-inch brass box with lid....flat silver boxes 100 years old, with Persian designs or pouting Cupids...bronze boxes with silver and gold inlay and wood linings, and the benign grandfather of them all, a 17th century box of ivory, ebony and tortoise shell, 14 inches square, and made expressly for the most fastidious collector you know.

Buy a box of Mihama pebble - stones at Kung Ping for 95 cents, and read the legend on the box: "We can see travellers gathering merrily the pice pebbles for any length of time. On the bed of the small pond glitters with pebbles even in present time and the clear water out of this pond beguile the tedium of the journey."

Lacquer pieces at Kung Ping are black or warm orange, some plain, some with painted leaf designs.

There are covered bowls, square boxes for secrets and a tiny lacquer chest.

Now at Country Mouse, you can buy a telephone to set the house a-ringing. It's a two and one-half foot high wall phone made long ago in Stockholm, for some reason, and still in good, gossipy condition.

It has gleaming bells, a slant-top writing surface and a $39.50 price tag. Another phone in this shop is an old-fashioned European hand phone to set on your desk. It stands 14 inches high on its black box, like something out of Grand Hotel.

While you're at the Mouse, pick up several fireplace fans, all folded and ready to go for $4.95. Gold on one side, color on the other.

New trays at Princeton Gourmet are made of pressed and lacquered material with a ripple edge, in plum, gold, green

For Chanukkah

Families who may be starting their own Chanukkah traditions, or who might like to add to a collection of Chanukkah Menorahs will find some unusual and handsome ones at Rina Galleries on Charlton Street.

One of the most interesting is a small wrought—or maybe cast-iron Menorah about five inches tall with a patina that looks like gold-leaf. Hang it on your wall. Another one, completely modern in feeling, has a flat bracket lying absolutely flat against the wall made of stylized Hebrew letters in silver.

Pointed glass holders contain the oil and the wicks. Perhaps the most magnificent one is the silver Menorah ($125), tall and slim and bearing quite gracefully the prize it won at a recent exhibition of silver craftsmanship.

Christmas Time

If the anticipation of Santa Claus doesn't wake up your family on Christmas morning, we have some clocks in our file that will.

Leopard's Head has an 18th century bracket clock in Chinoisserie design, with a repeater chime. If you stumble out of bed in the dark and want to know what time it used to be, you just pull a lever and the clock repeats the last hour it struck.

Village Watchmaker, in Kingston, has a Dutch Hood clock made around 1630, with a carved hood on top and only one hand (minutes didn't count in the 17th century.) Its face is painted and its weights are iron. Two grandmother-sized steeple clocks are designed for big mantel or shelf, at $42 each. One has a painted glass design, the other is floral.

Nassau Interiors has a 16-inch mahogany chiming clock like a miniature grandfather's clock. Grandfather, in this case, is electrified for efficiency, and minutes DO matter to him, by golly. $79.

Van Zandt's clock radio will wake you up with music, start the coffee and then fade away at the end of the day, all for $19.95.

or blue, for $7.50. Round trays of Finnish ripple glass have bamboo edges. On them you could set a Moku-Moku bowl of lacquered wood, and its six small matching Moku - Moku for each of your guests-guests.

Ruby glass from Blenko, at Village Watchmaker, comes in new ideas this year. A ruby loving cup with crystal handles and base is ready to hold the holly for your centerpiece. A tall goblet and pitcher matches. An orange glass piece is a free-style bowl for collectors who like shape as well as color.

Trio of Trivets. Spanish cigarette dishes at Princeton Decorating are made of a pottery that looks like iron. The figures resemble garden sculpture, actually. They are $5. A strawberry dish from Italy has strawberry plants around the raised edge. The bowl is raised and perforated, so that water drips off the berries into the cavity beneath. We like the idea of the Spanish gin bottle in green. Green Spanish gin?

University Store's Yugoslavian shepherd club are fruitwood in the form of animals, or birds. Do as the Yugoslavian shepherds do and use them for cigarettes.

Know a trio of trivet collectors? Buy Gourmet's with its matching wrought iron stand and moveable alcohol burners, or University Store's Sheshem wood trivets from India with perforations and free-hand designs, or Kung Ping's trivet of bamboo sections, 12 inches square.

Brass fingerbowls at $1 each are stacked for you at The Silver Shop. Use them for ivy, if not for fingers. Anything you buy at The Silver Shop would be charming with the flower arrangements from 18th Century Bouquet. This shop will make arrangements to order after you tell them the colors you want, or bring to them the container you prefer. From $5 up.

LaVake-Reid is all for Tiffany, with a desk set consisting of silver-bound blotter, calendar frame, stamp case, pencil sharpener (for silver pencils), letter opener and so on.

Leather is the substance of desk-sets at The Town Shop, where the accessories include string boxes, telephone registry, domestic memo for things like when - is - my - wife's - birthday, and so on. Town's got one of the biggest desk baskets you ever saw, lined with tortoise shell paper and filled with pencils. A knife comes, too.

18th Century arranges a floral desk set bound in Florentine paper trimmed with gold. You may have this made to order with your own choice of paper, if you prefer.

FOR BAR AND TABLE SKOAL! Bar hounds will want the lacquer liquor locker at Leopard's Head, and if he can say it, he's still sober. This old Dutch locker holds six bottle-green bottles with seals intact. Costs $68.50. A vaseline glass bowl would be superb for champagne punch. It's $35.

Cummins puts all its wine in one basket: at three-bottle basket for $4. Cordial sets, in clear or smoky glass, are $7.50 and up in this shop, and ice-buckets are $8.50 to $12 in leather and brass. The silver urn to cool your wine, will also hold a gallon of ice-cream. It's $36.30.

Country Mouse goes city with a red leather fire-brigade ice bucket at $49.94. Ash bucket and lighter match.

Ice-buckets at Town Shop are abaca wood, bamboo, and brass or tortoise shell, which ought to keep anybody cold.

Decanters at The Silver Shop are crystal thumb-print for wine, or tear-drop for sherry. They are $15 each. Rhine wine glasses have limpid blue-green twisted glass stems and grape etchings along the top.

New Swedish glass at Princeton Gourmet has been priced for modesty. The design is very simple—almost severe—and the sizes are ample. You know how the Swedes are!

For teatotallers, LaVake Reid has sterling tea services for $295 and $275, and a set of six enameled demi-tasse spoons boxed in green, gold, aqua, red and so on.

You can put a whole gallon of whatever you have into the expansive brass chafing dish at Cummins. Plain, round, black-framed and commodious, it costs $24.95. Thermo Tray, made for keeping hot-cakes hot, comes in three sizes. You can put food—even sausages—right on this tray, without a dish, as you probably know.

Kung Ping has a giant red snapper in pottery at $8.95. He'll hold anything a turven would hold, and you pick him up by his fins. Sake or demi-tasse cylinders are stone white six for $4.50. A matching two-decker jam pot stacks to four inches, and holds two spoons. It's $1.25.

For a Christmas buffet, Leopard's Head has 18-inch glass hurricanes, clear as a Christmas morning, at $29 a pair. Smaller ones, too. Tea urns in this shop hover around $100. One, plated, is $75. A Georgian kettle is $375, a giant loving-cup of a tea urn is $125.

Silver Shop has a Victorian plated service with two tea-pots, coffee pot, creamer, sugar and waste for $75. Incidentally, forget about tea for a moment and look at the Victorian condiment set, boxed, with tools for coping with horseradish, butter, salt and so on. Coin silver with gold wash, $16.

Pewter is the thing at Country Mouse. Dull-finish English pewter milk jugs (three inches up), plates, lamps and servers would be fine in a pine house. Nassau Interiors has English pewter, too, and you'll be particularly fond of the small, stubby teapot.

Two plated trays at Silver Shop command attention. One has an etched center with grape border, the other has a pierced border or leaves and grapes. A sterling Wedgwood bowl, 10 inches in diameter has an urn-patterned border and a smooth center, $18.

Have a Seat? In the furniture line, Schwartz in New Brunswick has a wing chair in toile with Queen Anne leg in cherry or maple quite as formal as the Queen herself. More informal, (by a long way!), is the Pennsylvania Dutch chair-and-a-half, used for courting, probably.

Barca Lounger has an early American chair. Lo-Z-Boy has a Hi-lo which is late and lazy American: its footrest stays up when you raise it.

Ivy Manor has "Rock - a - Lounger" in swivel rockers for TV viewing. Comes in all kinds of fabrics or plastics from $139 up.

Kung Ping enters the furniture field with a set of five folding chairs and a table with teak frame and deep green-natural rattan body. Suave and handsome for den or porch.

The Beau Brummel at Leopard's Head goes on top of a chest and folds out to a four-foot length reveling inside its four covered boxes for cuff-links, paper clips and railroad tickets. Dated 1790, or so, it is fine satinwood inlay with a mirror. Costs $125.

A little wing chair for a decorous Colonial lady is now at Nassau Interiors. This delightful little chair has shallow wings, low arms (those hoop skirts, you know) and a pleasing gold and white fabric.

An Heirloom Creche

Some of the most exquisite Christmas figures we have ever seen are available this year to buy as heirlooms—from the Princeton Decorating Shop on Palmer Square.

These are creche figures which may be purchased as a group or singly, and cherished from year to year as a family's most valued Christmas pieces. They are made of fine china by a team of European artists who call themselves "Porcelains by Cybis," after the name of their founder, a former resident of Princeton.

One kneeling angel about four inches tall, is made in a basic white parian ($7.50), designed with the most beautiful detail of features and sands. Other figures, notably those grouped together in creches and mounted on wooden bases, are done in different glazes in what is called a cypia treatment—a stained-glass effect which gives the feeling of light coming through a rose window.

There is a Madonna in cypia shades of blue, purple and rose. She stands about 10 inches high. Most of the creche groupings stand about six or seven inches high.

$89.95. For the same lady, buy a cherry desk, small and tidy as her own account books, for $154.

The man of the house will prefer the $89 campaign chest with recessed bronze pulls and bronze strips banding it all around. For a study, buy the olive green leather occasional chair, oval and forthright, with distressed mahogany finish.

Rug Mart caters to the ladies with a box-pleated wing chair designed with rounded arms. The men in this store get an eight-man poker table with individual spaces for chips, ash-trays, glasses and special holes for aces. Top is green felt. $56.

Our choice in occasional furniture is the hall pedestal at Manning's, said to be fine for Princetonians because so many of us have ancestral busts displayed in the hall. Only thing we've ever found in our hall is a pair of ancestral left-hand mittens and yesterday's unopened mail, but if grandfather is in your hall, this is for you.

Actually, you'll probably prefer Manning's mother-daughter rockers in maple or antique white and gold finish. Daddy can have the red leather study lamp that says "honi soit chi mal y pense", (a slightly ambiguous legend for a Christmas gift, seems to us)

While we're lighting the lamp, we might mention Schwartz' antiqued metal kerosene lamp with fruit print shade, Cummins' white apothecary jars decorated with flowers and birds, Kung Ping's lantern shades for $2 and $3 to hang up at Christmas or use in the summer, Leopard's Head's carved green quartz lamp from China with its Phoenix and peach blossoms, or the wooden lantern with its original glass and its note inside: "this lantern was made by my grandfather in 1832", Country Mouse's hand-carved Mallard decoy lamp base, or Home Furnishing's hand-done ceramic base with giraffe design or Kessler and Bellis' blue and white Meissen, or flowers within a glass bell.

Upstairs, Stone's Linen has Lan-air-cel Scotch waffle weave blankets in Merino wool pastels, or Manta's Belgian wool bound in nylon velvet. Blanket covers are dacron or nylon in pastel. Home Decor has St. Mary's blankets in washable plaid.

Towels at Stone are Martex. This shop also has straw waste-baskets and tissue holders, set about with buttons and bows or pastel ribbons.

At Home Decor in the Shipping Center, you'll find towels curtains and mats in a Pennsylvania Dutch heart and flower design, and Martex sculptured towels in a floral—but more subdued floral—pattern. Here you may buy boxed towel sets for $3.98 in white and pastels.

Farkouh's linen shop offers Callaway boxed towel sets from $4.98 in solids and prints like jonquil, morning glory and carnations, all in three colors. Imagine a jonquil- All-wool blankets by Faribault are: mint green, carnation, or arctic white—a warm arctic white you understand.

Bath accessories at Home Decor will remind you of Rome itself: alabaster bottles, flacons of black and gold, clear crystal trays etched with gold, squat bowls of powder blue glass. Not for the children, as you can see.

Daddy can have the $4.98 shaving mirror on white and gold extension bracket. Mother can have the swivel bathroom stool with white acrilan puff on the top.

Table linens are always good for the giving. Farkouh has the largest lace cloth in—well, in this town, anyway. It's very old, made in China, scaled to an eight-yard length and priced at thousands.

More modest pieces at Farkouh include hemstitched Irish linen place mats in white, maize, beige, or exquisite Alencon lace mats at $3.50 each, with matching natural linen napkins at $7.50 a dozen.

Belgian linen cloths, for bridge or dining, are trimmed with Brussels lace in a three-inch border that frames the white or pastel cloth. Madeira cloths have ecru, pink, blue or pale green embroidery and a bridge set is $14.50.

Floored. Occasional rugs from Farkouh, Home Decor, Nassau Interiors and Home Furnishings will spot your home with color. Farkouh's are Moroccan design worked in cotton in Belgium for an incredible $3.95 low (2x4 size). You may have them up to 9x12 in the deep wine, brown and natural colors predominate in these rugs.

Orientals, large and small, are always at your service at Farkouh. These are from Iran, 2x3 to room size.

Well, Home Decor prefers the wit of acrilan done up for children in a cub-bear rug, chick with orange wing, clown and kitten. Cotton rugs are new this year.

They are made in the shape of a captain's hat, a drum (gold and red), Humpty Dumpty (all white), a bean-shaped 19th hole and a doll's face. At Nassau Interiors, too.

Those wool rugs in modern designs that incorporate squares, oblongs and textures have been scaled down to cotton size in new rugs at Home Decor. Squares of blues and greens, irregular oblongs of pink and rose, warps and woofs of orange and gold are all available in scatter rugs quite as good-looking as their larger wool counterparts.

Home Furnishings has a new group of Belgian velvet occasional rugs measuring about 3x5 and 4x6. There's a jumping horse, a horse standing, Huckleberry Hound and his friends, Bambi and his, a leopard skin against kelly green, three kittens, a trio of poodles and so on. Prices start at $18 and only go to about $23.

Other cotton rugs, these hook-style, display gold and grey fireworks in modern design against a neutral background, a wood burning engine, a school of fish and so on.

Put a bare toe on the real lambskin rugs, treated to present a smooth and uniform pile to the foot. These rugs come in black, white or 11 colors at $24.95 and may be ordered for Christmas delivery. They are the general size and shape of a lamp, chops included.

"BEFORE DECEMBER 31"

Seek Hospital Members. Residents of the Princeton area are being urged to join the Princeton Hospital Corporation before the membership deadline of December 31. A group known as Friends of the Princeton Hospital has organized to recruit more members of the Hospital Corporation so that there will be a broader base from which to elect members to the Board of Trustees.

From its own membership, The Hospital Corporation elects the Board of Trustees, which has the responsibility for running the Hospital. All residents of the Princeton area are eligible to join the Corporation. The only membership requirement is a contribution of $5 or more to the Hospital, payable before December 31. A lifetime membership is $100.

Additional information concerning its membership drive may be obtained from the advertisement in this issue of TOWN TOPICS on page 27 or by calling WA 4-2284.

FUND AT 96 PERCENT

$221,065 Raised. The Princeton United Community Fund campaign has raised $224,065 of its goal of $234,000, according to an announcement made this week by campaign headquarters. Estimated outstanding gifts of about $5,000 are expected to raise the final total to approximately $229,000. This is an increase of $25,000 or 12 percent, over last year.

Division totals are as follows: Research, under Robert Popino, $17,358; Special Gifts under Frank Taplin, $92,136; Business, John Yeoman, $43,836; University, Gerald Farrington, $21,620; Neighborhood, Mrs. Alan Carrick and Mrs. Percy Clark, $19,114.

The Board of Trustees of the Fund will hold a special meeting Monday at noon at the YM-YWCA to discuss plans for the coming year and review the accomplishments of the past year.

LICENSES SUSPENDED

Under Point System. The Division of Motor Vehicles has announced the suspension of drivers' licenses under the state's point system. Ronald B. Kelly, 22, Hightstown, had his license suspended for two months.

Peter H. Bauer, 23, Mount Rose Road, Pennington, was convicted in Connecticut under the reciprocal agreement between Connecticut and New Jersey and has had his license suspended for 30 days.

CONSULTANT RETAINED

By Hospital. John G. Wallace, Jr., president of the board of Trustees of Princeton Hospital, has announced that Dr. Anthony J. J. Rourke has been retained to study the internal structure of the hospital administration, the by-laws of the Board of Trustees and the Medical Staff and the interrelationships among Trustees, members of the Medical Staff and the Administration.

The primary purpose of Dr. Rourke's study will be to determine the effectiveness of the present operation of the hospital and to make recommendations for improvement. He will begin his study early in 1961 and will report to the trustees by mid-spring. A well-known medical consultant, Dr. Rourke has served since 1954 as consultant to the assistant secretary of defense.

In announcing Dr. Rourke's study, Mr. Wallace also said that the Hospital's Master Planning Committee will soon retain architects to start construction plans. Although no detailed announcement has been made by the trustees, it is thought that the extension of the Medical Arts Building will be the first project undertaken in the next phase of the Hospital's expansion.

NURSE IS NAMED

To Hospital Post. Mrs. Louise McAlinden of Hopewell has been named director of the School of Practical nursing at Princeton Hospital with the title of Assistant Director of Nursing Education. She succeeds Mrs. Cleora Brown who resigned in September.

Mrs. McAlinden is a 1948 graduate of the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania and received her B.S. degree from Pennsylvania in 1958. Shortly after receiving her R.N., Mrs. McAlinden served as staff nurse at Princeton Hospital. She was a supervisor at the New Jersey Neuro-Psychiatric Institute and has been a clinical instructor at the New Jersey State Hospital and St. Francis Hospital in Trenton.

IS CHRISTMAS CHANGING? The possibility that people are losing sight of the original reason for celebrating Christmas has John Dennis (right) "concerned" and James Heller "afraid." For a report on what others think, see below.

Question of the Week

Question: Has Christmas lost its original meaning?
Where asked: Palmer Square.

Miss Dora Owens, 12 Craven Lane, Lawrenceville, assistant bookkeeper: Yes, I think it has. I think the original meaning of Christmas was to give to others, to make others feel nice. I feel now when you go out to buy a gift you say, "I won't spend but so much because so and so will only spend so much on me."

John Mount, 116 Magnolia Lane, research analyst: No, I don't think Christmas has lost its original meaning. It may be overly commercialized in some quarters but I still think it represents to most Christians a day commemorating the birth of Christ.

Mrs. Constatine Kalli, Lawrenceville Road, homemaker: Possibly for older people but I don't think so for children. They still believe in Santa Claus, I think Christmas cards are a good example of how it has lost its meaning. You get cards nowadays with Santa Claus holding a cocktail glass. There are very few religious cards anymore.

Kurt Schmeller, Graduate College, history student: Yes, I think so. I don't believe the original religious meaning and sensitivities occupy people's minds anymore. It's been commercialized, in my opinion—which may not be bad because we all seem to enjoy it. After all, there is no point in being over apologetic about this.

Mrs. Elmer Engstrom, 181 Library Place, housewife: I feel that people today have made Christmas a commercial spectacle. The real, true meaning is the birth of our King, the Lord, Jesus Christ. "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life."

Prosper Aeschbacher, 43 Prospect Avenue, club steward: Yes, it's too commercialized nowadays. They start too far ahead. By the time Christmas comes around, it's lost its meaning—it is just another day.

Mrs. Joseph A. Dougherty, 23 Southern Way, housewife: I would say for a great many people it has. For most of us, unless we put the brakes on, Christmas can be a chore. The preparations for Christmas have become so commercialized today that unless we stop and think, the real reason for Christmas is forgotten.

John H. Ward, 30 Russell Drive, retired: No, I think its meaning has become broadened. Peace is emphasized more than it has ever been; unselfishness by way of giving, though commercialized, has been greatly advanced; good will among men has far greater practice than it has at any period throughout history. When ever in the world was there such evidence greater than this than by our own nation during the past few years? We gave away literally billions of dollars of our hard-earned wealth. In fact, this might be calculated at, at least, 50 billions of dollars. Our Christian generosity in this respect, as a Christian nation, has astonished all the nations of the world.

Mrs. Ralph Coghlan, Carter Road, real estate saleswoman: It hasn't lost its original meaning for me. But now that my children are grown, married, and away from home, Christmas is not as happy and warm an event as it once was. Even though I may have a sentimental and nostalgic feeling about it, it still is a religious time to me.

El Sayed El Dely, 9 Witherspoon Street, visiting student in the office of Population Research, Princeton University: I am not a Christian but I think that Christmas has not lost its meaning in the world. I believe the majority of the people still believe in God and I think the Moslems, of whom I am one; the Jews, and others have in their hearts a deep feeling for Christmas. Right now, most of the people are materialistic and those who feel pessimistic have some right to feel as they do. But I am optimistic about the future of the world. I feel the time will come soon when there will be a return to spiritualism. For every action, there is a reaction.

Mrs. Oscar Sussman, 194 North Harrison Street, housewife: Definitely. I feel it has become a commercial holiday instead of a religious one—at least for many people. I think people have been carried away by the emphasis of the stores on buying gifts.

Harold Nickens, 160 John Street, builder: Yes, I think so. It's become too commercialized. Seems to me that the spirit for which it was intended has been lost. It's more buying than giving now. If people don't have a lot of money to buy presents, they feel it isn't Christmas.

Mrs. Helen Evatt, 42 Bayard Lane, housewife: A little but not too much. I think it is all in the way you personally feel about it. The commercialism you can take it or leave it. I just overlook the mercenary approach to Christmas.

Hurst Groves, 212 1937 Hall, University student: No, in general, I don't think it has. There may be a tendency for it to be ever commercialized but I still believe the spirit of Christmas exists—at least it does where I come from.

Miss Marilyn Smith, 201 Crescent Avenue, Mercerville, receptionist for Electronic Associates: I think it has become too commercialized. People tend to be enught up in the great rush of gift-buying and sometimes forget the true meaning of Christmas. We should sit down and remember why we celebrate Christmas.

Miss Joyce Young, The Great Road, housekeeper: Definitely. It has become so commercialized that most people have forgotten that Christ was born that day.

John Dennis, Princeton Theological Seminary, student: We hope it hasn't affected life at the seminary but it has made us concerned. We would hope that people would realize the true joy, meaning, and wonder of Christ's birth and live in that spirit rather than in the economic spirit that seems to shape our lives.

Jim Heiler, Princeton Theological seminary, student: I think Christmas should have as its center a joy, and Christmas is a joyous occasion in our society today. But I am afraid that the joy and happiness we celebrate at this time is connected with a purely secular holiday rather than with the birth of the Son of God, Jesus Christ.

was made possible by a gift from Mrs. Whitney Coletti of Rosedale Road.

Mrs. Coletti made the gift in memory of her parents, Grace Kerrnish Whitney and Edward Samuel Whitney. The building will be known as the Whitney Center. Robert V. Dilley is chairman of the center's Princeton Committee.

The Center, whose main office is in Trenton, opened a part-time branch in the Nassau Street School in 1958, in response to requests from many Princeton residents. In 1958, the group moved to rented offices, following a campaign which raised nearly $6000. The Center became a member of the United Fund in 1959, and also receives money from the State, the County Board of Freeholders, private donations and fees charged for services.

A psychiatric children's clinic, the Center offers both diagnostic services and treatment to children and their parents, as well as consultation with those working with children in the community.

Staff Expanded. Daniel Gottlieb, a psychiatric social worker, has joined the Center's staff, which includes Dr. Charles E. Swift, director; Dr. Nathaniel Boonin, child psychiatrist; and Mrs. Martha Montgomery, clinical psychologist. Mr. Gottlieb has worked at the New Haven Family Service Agency and the Child Guidance Clinic in Bridgeport, Conn.

The Princeton Committee of the Child Guidance Center, in addition to Mr. Dilley, includes Mrs. Ansley J. Coale, Mrs. Coletti, Mrs. Thomas B. Cook, Wells Drorbaugh Jr., Melvin B. Gottlieb, Frank Haronian, Mrs. Edward L. Katzenbach, Mrs. J. Murray Kempton, Mrs. Franklin A. Lindsay and Dr. William Miller.

XMAS DANCE PLANNED

For Valley Road Students. Christmas dance for 7th and 8th grade students of Valley Road School has been planned for Friday, December 16, from 6 to 10 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

Student chairmen for the event, which will be sponsored by the student council, are Louise Gardner and Joseph McKee. Mrs. Barbara Lorber and Joseph Frolio will be faculty chaperones. Parent chaperones will be Mr. and Mrs. John Green and Mr. and Mrs. John McAndrew.

Committee chairmen are Sally Stewart, refreshments; Margaret Greenfield, entertainment; Dennis Jeffries, tickets; Pam Danner, records; Ernie Pignona, prizes; and Andre Hally and Penny Foster, decorations.

TEEN WORKERS SOUGHT

By New March of Dimes. An appeal to teen-agers to join the Teen-Age Program (TAP) of the 1961 New March of Dimes has been issued by Carol Randall of 103 Patton Avenue, one of the TAP leaders.

"Now that the National Foundation has expanded its activities to include birth defects and arthritis as well as polio it is increasing the ranks of its volunteers to meet the demands of this new program," said Miss Randall, a junior at Princeton High School. "Teens are especially needed to help in raising funds and in distributing information about the Salk vaccine."

Other TAP workers include Sharon Mather and John Bensinger, also students at Princeton High School.

Chess Rates Fanfara

The battle of the Nassau Street chessmen has finally come to an end, but not without quite a bit more than a fair share of fanfare. Certainly the two "window" players, the Rev. David H. McAlpin and Gray Sidwell, have become among the most famous chess players in the nation.

The story of the running chess game in the window of LaVake-Reid's jewelry store, 54 Nassau Street, first came to light in "This Is Princeton," the lead article in Town Topics issue of November 20-26. The story was as appealing to the general public as the game was to the spectators on Nassau Street, for reports soon appeared in other newspapers throughout the nation.

By the time the game ended last week, with Mr. Sidwell, who played the white, checkmating the Rev. Mr. McAlpin, a representative of a national press service was on hand to photograph the moment for posterity. The picture was shown on a nationwide telecast and has already brought varying comment from many distant areas.

Report from THE MAYOR

Nineteen Hours. Sunday's giant storm brought more than a taste of deep, heavy snow, winds and sub-freezing temperatures even before winter had officially arrived. Householders who struggled to open doorways and clear sidewalks and driveways probably have some way of measuring the gigantic task facing Borough crews starting early Sunday afternoon.

At 1 o'clock, the maintenance crews began the salting operation — a vital step that has to be taken early if its is to be effective. As soon as the snow reached a depth of three inches, the minimum for effective plowing, the plows began their relentless attack on the tons of snow.

Emergencies First. Residents may wonder about priorities in tackling such a big job. First call must go to emergency situations: the storm brought several of these, where serious illness meant opening the way for emergency vehicles.

Firehouses are obviously a top priority. This vital equipment must be ready and able to move; for fire is an even greater hazard under storm conditions.

Next come the main arteries, the circulation streets that hopefully allow necessary movement for those who must travel. Police patrols are not easy assignments at times like these.

Don't Forget Henry. The heavy, exhausting work of moving back the snow went on throughout the night while most of us slept. Arnold Ryden and Henry Chester and all of their men worked a long, tough 19 hours without rest.

Trucks broke down, had to limp into the Borough garage for quick repairs, and then were rushed back to active duty. Surrounding towns appealed for help as their equipment, too, was found inadequate to meet the sustained heavy demands.

Borough official phones rang now and then with a complaint that "something should be done"; but it is good to be able to report that when they were advised of the size of the job to be done, the dedication and the hard work of bone-weary crews, each of the critics seemed to understand to appreciate the valiant efforts and the great job done by these public "servants".

On The Calendar: Last week's schedule included the agenda session of Mayor and Council and an important meeting of the borough planning board, followed by many phone calls to line up an advisory committee to help in sifting the recommendations for Princeton's future as presented by consultant planner Dodd McHugh.

Borough and Township mayors shared the assignment of bringing the community's greetings to the Jewish Center at its dedication ceremonies on Sunday afternoon. The new construction by religious institutions of many faiths during recent years has added to the strength of this community and we can remind ourselves that they are all working and serving together in a spirit of great friendship, cooperation and tolerance.

"Tell It To The Mayor!" The regular weekly open house sessions will be held on Friday, December 16th, and Friday, December 23, from 7 to 10 p.m. at Borough Hall. No appointment is ever necessary for these informal meetings.

QUINTET IMPRESSES

Tigers Have Fine Balance

It will be a month before Princeton's basketball team plays in Dillon Gym again. By that time, the Tigers will have a couple of Ivy League games under their belts and should be one of the most exciting quintets ever to wear Orange and Black.

Various unanticipated developments can occur, of course, to keep these Princetonians from achieving the heights that seem within reach. Injury or academic ineligibility could hobble them; they might, as virtually any good team occasionally does, fall prey to over-confidence and blow a vital game.

But off what they have shown to date, no opponent is likely to beat them in Dillon Gymnasium and only a good team playing at its best on its own court may be more than they can handle. Among the latter would be Canisius, which the Tigers meet in the first round of the Queen City Tournament on New Year's weekend.

Although most Ivy teams can be tough on their own courts, only Brown, Penn and possibly Yale figure to give this year's Tigers a real run, for their money. The Quakers, incidentally, are the last game on the Princeton schedule and hopes are that the Tigers will have the title wrapped up by then rather than play the decisive game in the Palestra.

High-Scoring Attack. Despite the unpredictable characteristics of the Ivy races, chances are that Princeton will win the 1961 championship before the season ends. Two factors weigh heavily in the Tigers' favor: all five of their starters are capable of hitting double figures on a given night, and they have more bench strength than a Nassau quintet has had within memory. Witness the performance of Jack Whitehouse, who came into the Navy game Friday with 15 minutes left in the second half and promptly hit on seven of nine shots for 14 points.

Whitehouse had replaced Andy Higgins, who was experiencing a cold night after two good games against Lafayette and Temple. In the Lafayette game, Whitehouse had done a fine job of taking over for Pete Campbell, who was off form that night, while in the Temple contest, Tom Adams stood in well for Al Kaemmerlen when the latter fouled out.

Although his team has won its first three games by ten points or better, Cappy Cappon has used only three substitutes: Whitehouse, Adams and Drew Hyland. Still on the bench are such tested veterans as Mike Burton and John Pasalis, who have shown well in game action and whose presence creates depth rarely known here.

Sophomore Art Hyland, the back court man who drew the major assignment of replacing Jim Brangan, last year's captain, has turned in solid performances to date. He has a fine eye for the basket from the side court, can drive in if given the opportunity and holds his own defensively with more experienced players.

Navy Was Unorthodox. Stripped by graduation of four of the five players who took it well into the NCAA playoffs last year, Navy's inexperienced quintet sought to win Friday night by creating confusion. Veteran coach Ben Carnevale hoped the unexpected might turn the trick as he used an all-court press from the beginning and a tight man-to-man defense.

The rough action that resulted created-its problems for the Tigers, but 75 percent accuracy from the foul line was a major asset in the victory. In the first half alone, they took a 32-28 lead because they sank 16 free throws as a result of the 12 personal fouls charged to the visitors' pressure guarding.

The best field goal shooting performance ever seen in Dillon Gym wrapped up the contest in the second half. Cappy's operatives hit for an astounding 63 percent (29 for 46) to offset completely a better-than-average 45 percent credited to the losing midshipmen. In he second half alone, the Tigers were 21 for 30, or 70 percent!

Pete Campbell had his second hot night in a row, getting 31 against Navy after making 26 in the Temple contest. In all, five Princetonians hit double figures in the 85-72 triumph: Kaemmerlen with 16, Whitehouse, 14; Captain Don Swan, 11; and Art Hyland, 10.

HOCKEY TEAM HOPEFUL

Of Victory over Brown. Despite a record of one victory in its first four games this season, Princeton's hockey team heads for Providence on Friday with the belief that it can open its Ivy season with a victory over Brown. Early-season indications are that Harvard is head and shoulders over the rest of the circuit; that defending champion Dartmouth may be the best bet for the runner-up slot; and that the other four entries, Princeton, Yale, Brown and Cornell, all have a host of problems.

Cornell, of course, remains the weakest while hockey is a-building at Ithaca, but neither Yale or Brown is a solid squad this year. One high-scoring line, a standout goalie and a will to win may be enough to make the difference for the Tigers against opponents of their own calibre.

Middlebury, B.U. Win. The two most recent defeats came at the hands of a powerful but sloppy Middlebury sextet and well-balanced Boston University. The Tigers rallied strongly to throw the Middlebury game into overtime, eventually losing, 7-6, and went down before B.U. on Saturday, 4-2.

Johnny Cook of Kingston made his first varsity appearance in Baker Rink a spectacular one as he hit for three goals and the hat trick against Middlebury. The visitors were off to a 3-0 lead before the first period ended, and had a 6-3 bulge midway through the second.

However, skating with Perry Hall and sophomore Jim Hyland, Cook helped the Tigers draw even. His third goal at 17:54 of the final round narrowed the gap to 6-5 and when Hyland connected with 59 seconds left on a long shot from the right sideboards, the game went into overtime.

Unfortunately, Princeton's penchant for drawing penalties was still working, and the home team began the sudden-death overtime period with two men in the box. The Tigers got one back, but before they were at full strength, the visitors beat Barry Van Gerbig with a shot from close range at 1:32.

Boston University yielded a first-period goal Saturday afternoon to Hyland but came back to tie the score before the round ended and then took control of the game. The Tigers cut their penalties all the way down to one, but the same defensive lapses that have meant the difference since the opening victory over Colgate were repeated, and the outcome was never really in doubt.

A sub-par Brown outfit may be the step toward brighter moments for the Orange and Black this weekend. On Saturday, however, the Tigers figure to move out of their depth once again when they face a powerful Northeastern sextet at Cambridge.

SWIMMERS WIN, 63-32

But Wrestlers Are Blanked. One record was broken as Princeton's swimming team topped New York University, 63-32, in Dillon Pool Saturday. The Tigers took nine of 11 first places.

Sophomore Gardiner Green swam the 200-yard breaststroke in 2:19.6. He chopped almost five seconds off the Princeton mark he had set as freshman.

Jimmy Reed's sub-par wrestling team had no luck at all with powerful Rutgers, which won every match. It was a 33-0 final.

AL KAEMMERLEN
Tiger Basketball Center

Princeton's basketball team, off to a perfect start in its first three games this season, has won because it is controlling the play. To do so, it must top the opposition in rebounds, and one player who has been collaring more than his share is 6-4 Al Kaemmerlen.

By the tape, the 204-lb. junior has been an inch or so shorter than each of his personal opponents in the Tigers' victories against Lafayette, Temple and Navy. In action, however, he has been more effective: against Lafayette, for example, his 27 rebounds were one less than the entire total credited to the losing team.

When Princeton faces a man-to-man defense, the big Tiger center is the pivot, or post, man, around whom the Cappon weave operates. Often, he feeds off to another player; sometimes he shoots himself. If it's a zone over which the Orange and Black is shooting, Kaemmerlen can be close under or, occasionally, on the side court.

Wherever he is, his dual role calls for accurate passing and shooting, assignments he has filled well against three of the east's better independent teams. He opened with 20 points against Lafayette, added 11 before he collected five personal fouls in the victory over Temple and then threw in 16 more as the Tigers were shelling the Navy. That's a solid 15.7 average to add to his fine rebounding.

Kaemmerlen's sophomore year was an in-and-out affair from Princeton's point of view. He missed the early games while recovering from a knee operation and then was benched from mid-February on by academic ineligibility.

In between, his many contributions helped put the Tigers in motion toward the Ivy title they eventually won, to the surprise of virtually everyone but themselves. This year, Kaemmerlen is bigger, stronger and more experienced—all qualities he will need under the basket, where the going is roughest. It looks like a bright year on the court for Princeton, with a lot of the polish traceable directly to Al Kaemmerlen's steady play.

Sports In Princeton

Friday morning. Play will continue that afternoon and evening, with the consolation final Saturday morning and the championship event at 2:30 in Baker Rink.

Seeded first is Deerfield Academy, with Taft (a 4-3 victor Saturday over the Princeton freshmen) second in the pre-tournament rankings. Other seeded teams are Lawrenceville and St. Marks.

First - round pairings are Lawrenceville vs. Nichols of Buffalo; Belmont Hill vs. Taft; Hill vs. St. Marks; and Deerfield vs. Choate. For the first time in several years, the number of Princeton area residents on the various squads is small, totalling only five.

Three—Robbie Carrick, Dave Kelley and Nick Hare—will play for Choate. Steve Cook represents St. Marks and Mac McMorris, Deerfield. All are Princeton Country Day School alumni.

Charles R. Erdman is chairman of the Tournament Committee, with Harrison S. Fraker treasurer. Other members are John Bernard, James Carey, William Stryker, Laurence Tilhonen, Christopher Rodgers, George and Donald Young.

PHS DROPS OPENER

To Hightstown, 53-51. Princeton High School's basketball team, defeated by Hightstown, 53-51, in its season opener, will play three games in the next week.

The PHS forces will play host to Steinert on Friday, and will entertain Hunterdon Central on Tuesday. Next Friday, December 23, the Little Tigers will take on Ewing in an away contest.

Gil Fischer and Dan Brown lead the Little Tiger effort against Hightstown, scoring 12 and 10 points respectively. Princeton pushed to an 8-5 lead after the first eight minutes, but the visitors got ten straight points at the beginning of the second quarter and were never headed thereafter.

Brown hit for five straight points late in the game to narrow the Hightstown margin to two as they lead, 63-61. Lee Platt iced the game for the Rams with a field goal in the closing seconds. Hightstown's Dick Gunnell had 21 to take game scoring honors.

LARRIES TAKE TWO

As Basketball Season Opens. Lawrenceville school's basketball team rolled to victory in its first two games of the season, smashing Trinity-Pawling School, 73-17, and downing Haverford School, 60-44. The Larries were scheduled to take on Poly Prep Wednesday in Brooklyn.

The season's opener against Trinity - Pawling saw Chuck Miller pour in 28 points, just four short of the school record held by former Princetonians Jim Brangan and Fred Perkins. Clark Conner and Ron Beeks added 15 and 9 points, respectively, to add to the Lawrenceville onslaught.

Miller got another 27 points in the triumph over Haverford Saturday, achieved on the losers' court. The Red and Black's first game after Christmas vacation is set for January 11, with Admiral Farragut furnishing the opposition.

PRIZES OFFERED

A Deer Hunters' Treasure Chest is being held through Saturday at the Yardville Sales Center on Route 130 Yardville.

A $50 gift certificate and a pair of 7 x 50 binoculars will be presented to the hunter bringing in the heaviest deer for display. For the deer brought in having the most points, a $25 gift certificate and a similar pair of binoculars will be offered. Each award includes free butchering of the carcass.

The first 25 successful hunters to bring in a deer, weather permitting, will each receive a $5 gift certificate. The animals will be displayed on a large overhang which has been erected in front of the Center.

News Of The CHURCHES

DEDICATION IN SNOW

For Princeton Jewish Center. Despite the steady pile-up of snow last Sunday afternoon, several hundred people turned out for the dedication of the new Princeton Jewish Center building. The occasion also marked the Jewish Center's 10th anniversary.

Rabbi Ely E. Pilchik of Congregation B'nai Jeshurun, Newark, who was scheduled to be chief speaker at the dedication, was unable to make the trip down from North Jersey and had to broadcast his talk through a special telephone hook-up. A special feature of the program was the singing of a song composed especially for the occasion by Frenk Lewin.

Speakers included William Miller, president of the center; the Rev. David L. Crawford, secretary of Princeton Theological Seminary and president of the Princeton Pastors' Association; Raymond A. Bowers, builder of the center; Mayor Raymond A. Male of Princeton Borough and Mayor R. Kenneth Fairman of Princeton Township.

The invocation was by Rabbi Dr. Irving M. Levey of the Hillel Foundation of Princeton University and the benediction by Rabbi Aaron H. Krauss of the center. Dr. Henry Abrams was general program chairman and Egon E. Loebner was dedication chairman.

WREATH SALE SET

At Unitarian Church. The annual Christmas wreath sale sponsored by the Women's Alliance of the Unitarian Church of Princeton will be held Saturday, December 17, beginning at 2 p.m. at the church, Cherry Hill and State Roads.

A spaghetti supper, with salad and dessert, will be served from 5 to 7 p.m., following the wreath sale. The price will be $1 for adults and 60 cents for children under 8. Both the sale and the supper are open to the public.

BULLETIN NOTES

The Family Night program of the Presbyterian Church of Lawrenceville will be held this Sunday from 6 to 7 p.m. in the Youth Center. Dinner will be served by a committee of the Women's Association headed by Mrs. Joseph Hensler and Mrs. Parker Striffler. A holiday program, "The Meaning of Christmas," will be presented by the Church School.

Registration for the Trinity Parish Adult School has been extended until next Wednesday, December 21. The school, which is open to all those interested, will offer six courses, each meeting once a week for eight weeks, beginning January 9. Further information and registration blanks may be obtained at the Parish Office, 33 Mercer Street.

The annual "Star of Wonder" candlelight service at the East Millstone Dutch Reformed Church will be held at 8 p.m. this Thursday, Friday and Sunday, December 15, 16 and 18. Two choirs and a score of performers and technicians will participate in the dramatization of the Christmas story.

Calvary Baptist Church, Hopewell, will stage its annual "Living Nativity" scene this Sunday, December 18, and next Thursday, Friday and Saturady, December 22, 23 and 24. The scene, in which members of the congregation pose with live sheep and a live donkey, will be staged from 7 to 8:30 p.m. on the church lawn, at the corner of Board Street and Greenwood Avenue.

We, the Friends of Princeton Hospital, are taking this opportunity to urge members of the Princeton Community to join the Princeton Hospital Corporation.

It is the Hospital Corporation that elects the Board of Trustees who carry the full responsibility for the government of the Hospital. According to the democratic principles of the Corporation every resident of the Princeton area may become a member and vote at the Annual Election, held in February. The sole requirement for membership is a contribution of $5.00 or more to the Hospital Membership Fund BEFORE DECEMBER 31ST. You may become a lifetime member for $100.

We believe that the Hospital will benefit from wider community representation and support in its plans for the future. Therefore we urge you to become a voting member of the Corporation. Please fill out this form and send it to Princeton Hospital. Your check should be made out to the PRINCETON HOSPITAL MEMBERSHIP FUND.

Obituaries

Vice Admiral William Mack Angas, 68, of 59 College Road West, died December 12 at his home of a heart attack. He was chairman of Princeton University's department of civil engineering, a position he held since 1950 when he retired after 32 years with the Navy.

During World War II, he commanded the Seventh Fleet's Seabees, and was awarded the Legion of Merit in 1945. He was the author of "Rivelry on the Atlantic," a history of the development of the express steamer on the Atlantic.

He was a member of the American Concrete Institute, the American Society of Civil Engineers, the Institute of Professional Engineers, the New York Yacht Club, and Theta Chi fraternity. He was a consultant to the State of New Jersey on beach erosion.

Admiral Angas was born in Great Burdon, England, and came to this country as a child. He was a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and entered the Civil Engineering Corps of the Navy in 1918 as a Lieutenant j.g. In 1942, he was named public works officer of the Navy Yard in New York as a captain.

As head of the Seabees, he supervised construction of bases at Milne Bay, Manus, Hollandia, Biak, Morotai, Leyte Gulf, Mindoro, Subic Bay, Palawan, Zamboango, Mactan Island, and the Seventh Fleet Headquarters in Manila. In 1944 he was promoted to Commodore, and the next year, was designated Commander, Construction Forces, Seventh Fleet.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Katherine Tracy L'Engle Angas; five daughters, Mrs. W.T. Hardaker of Washington, D. C.; Lieutenant Commander Mary Mack Angas of Newport, R. I.; Miss Jean M. Angas of Philadelphia; Mrs. Frederick H. Weaver of Chapel Hill, N.C., and Mrs. George B. Douglas 3d of Wayne, Pa.

The Rev. Robert R. Spears, Jr. officiated at the funeral, held in Trinity Church. A service was also held at the Fort Meyer Chapel in Virginia. Interment was in Arlington National Cemetery. Arrangements were under the direction of the Mather Funeral Home.

leading Kase Kleaners and Shelton No. 1 by seven points each. In the "B" loop, Walker Gordon saw its lead cut to two games by Cifelli Electric (56) with Tiger Bus (51) running third. Nassau Bootery (75) began to pull away from Craft Dry Cleaners (63) in the Women's League, and Cranbury Bank and Amron Homes were tied for third with 58 points each. The Mixed League, along with most of the rest of the area, was snowed out Sunday night.

Bernie Giehl posted the top games of the week with 254-220 in the Faculty League for a 653 series. Other notable individual scores included Glenn Lengwick, 222; Pete Southard, 217-213; Bill Bailey, 210; John Nicol, 208; Don Grove, 207; and Ron Rule, 201, in the Faculty League; and Al Perna, 213; Bill Whatley, 212; Phil Wassum, 210; and John Zinsmeister, 202, in the "A" loop.

Also, Howard McWhorter, 231; Jack Lucey, 223-200; Harry Kahny, 223; Bob Scuferati, 221; Tony Tamasi and Pete Pranis, 211 each; Nick Rossi and Jim Kahny, 207 each; and Frank Delneso, 204, in the "B" League; and Milton Shinn, 212 and Gene LaVigne, 202, in the Industrial loop. Vera Buchele topped the Women's League with 166, followed by Lorraine Daniels, 182 and Millie Trani and Liz Barclay, 180 each.

TIGERS BOW

To Villanova, 75-46. In a lackluster performance that saw the Tigers only 29 percent of its shots, Princeton's basketball team bowed to Villanova Tuesday night, 75-46. The contest was played on the victors' court 24 hours later than scheduled because of the snowstorm.

Early in the first half, the Tigers trailed by only 10-12, but a six-minute scoring drought followed and the home team moved out to a 33-14 advantage. By half-time, it was 40-22, and long before the game ended, Cappy Cappon had pulled his off-form regulars to clear his bench. High scoring Pete Campbell was held to seven points.

Princeton will go to Rutgers this Thursday night to face a Scarlet quintet that has lost to Penn and beaten Columbia. The contest will end the Tigers' pre-Christmas activities.

VIOLINS TO PLAY

Will Accompany PHS Choir. A string orchestra will accompany the Princeton High School Choir when it sings Bach's "Cantata 191" at its annual Christmas concert. The concert under the direction of Thomas Hilbish, will be held Monday, December 19, at 8:15 p.m. in Princeton University Chapel.

Other featured work in the concert will be Buxtehude's "Das Neugeborne Kindelein." This will be accompanied by a string quartet composed of Anne Greene, Julia Fremon and John Rogerson, violinists, and Anne Switten, cellist. Miss Greene will also provide the violin accompaniment for a duet from Bach's "Cantata 63," to be sung by Elizabeth Dinsmore, soprano, and Robert Robertson, bass.

The traditional candlelight procession will follow the introit, "Wisdom Exalteth Her Children," by Lionel Nowark, which will be sung by Judith Coffman, Louisa Cook, Carol Hersh, Susan Kilbon, Edith Leverenz, Frances Meck and Carol Widman.

At the end of the program alumni will join the full choir in singing Bach's "Break Forth O Beauteous Heavenly Light" and the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messieh." Preceding the concert a brass choir, under the direction of Walter Horner, will play Christmas carols and the freshmen vocal music class will sing "Noel" by Dorothy McLemore and "Rejoice, Ye Christien Men, Rejoice" by Michael Praetorius.

CAROL SING SCHEDULED

At Princeton YMCA. A family Christmas carol sing will be held next Thursday, December 22, at 7 p.m. at Princeton YM-YWCA, Avalon Place. The sing is being sponsored by the Music Group of the Newcomers' Club.

CAROL SERVICE FRIDAY

At Miss Fine's. A variety of Christmas music will be sung by Miss Fine's School students this Friday at 4:30 in the school auditorium. Among the offerings at the candlelight service will be a 13th century motet sung by the madrigal group and accompanied by finger cymbals.

The middle and upper schools will give a choral recitation of the Christmas story from the second chapter of Luke. The carols will be sung in French, German, Latin and English. Christmas wreaths and sprays will be sold at the back of the auditorium for the benefit of the social service committee.

THE BEST NUMBER to call for classified advertising is WAlnut 4-2200. Best proof is the number of ads running in this issue. Telephone your ad or bring it to 4 Mercer Street by Tuesday afternoon before 5.

Time is growing short and soon the little man with the heavy boots will come clambering down the chimney and sprinkle soot all over the living room. But we'll thrust our shoulders and say "Cheers" . . . A toast to holiday time. Now soot can make a man mighty thirsty . . . so this year let's leave him a sparkling bottle of KERNS GINGER ALE or KERNS CLUB SODA. And, if you've a mind to leave him something to warm him against the cold . . . set up a bottle of BUCANERO SCOTCH WHISKY, imported and bottled exclusively for KERNS. BUCANERO costs just a little bit more than most Scotches, but the quality of its flavor can't be beat. Santa will appreciate every drop either from the CERAMIC FLAGON or the GLASS DECANTER and he'll enjoy serving it to his special friends. Ask your dealer today for KERNS GINGER ALE or CLUB SODA and place your order for BUCANERO SCOTCH WHISKY too. Santa will remember you all the year 'round. Call WA 4-2468. 11-17-5t

Force of habit can bring strange results. Through habit we often accept less than the best rather than try something new. Perhaps by habit you continue to buy the same GINGER ALE and CLUB SODA that you've used for years. You'd be surprised and delighted if you'd try KERNS PALE DRY GINGER ALE and KERNS SPARKLING CLUB SODA. You'd find that Kerns has in these two mixers beverages of superlative quality. KERNS CLUB SODA and KERNS GINGER ALE will hold their sparkling carbonation long after other mixers have gone flat. Try these two KERNS products. You'll like the clean taste of KERNS GINGER ALE; you'll like the mineral spring character of KERNS SPARKLING WATER. Ask your dealer for KERNS by the case or by the bottle. You'll like the saving in price, too. Call WA 4-0036. 11-17-5t

with Lightolier Lamps
Flexible, Functional, Fashionable

LUMILON DESK LAMP

There's nothing finer for close, concentrated desk work. Exclusive one-piece Lumilon shade-diffuser spreads a flood of eye-saving light over a wide study area. No glare, no shadows, 3-level light control, weighted base. Blends with all decors. Choice of smart 2-tone colors. Washable shade practically indestructible. $14.95

LYTECASTER TREE LAMP

Contoured shades swivel and light separately with a turn of the built-in switch. Turn one shade to your book, one to your wall decoration, one to the ceiling for general light. Unbreakable plastic shades have white interiors for greater light reflection . . . Anti-glare band blocks annoying glare. $19.95

WALL LAMP

This flexible wall lamp lifts, lowers, swings side to side, puts light wherever it's needed. Engineered for a circle of glarefree downlight plus diffused uplight. Mounts easily to wall, plugs in like a lamp . . . Walnut matchstick or slatstick shade. Harmonizes with any decor. A refreshing change of pace from conventional lamps.
